Warsaw’s most iconic building

Reviled by some, admired by others, the Palace of Culture and Science is still Warsaw’s most visible landmark. The Palace was Stalin’s gift to Poland, or as most Poles see it, a symbol of Soviet domination.

Inside, you will experience the Socialist Realism style that dominated the communist era: monumental walls, sweeping marble floors and grand rooms. These rooms are ideal for organizing meetings and events, especially if you require an alternative to modern conference rooms.

InterContinental Warsaw owns a private bee garden, located in Notec Valley in the northern part of Poland. The bee garden, situated among the meadows and forests of Notec, is a source of a unique multi-flower, acacia tree, linden tree and rape honey.
